Dear Administrator Brooks-LaSure:

Thank you for your tireless work in protecting the wellbeing of all Americans during the pandemic and for the stability you have provided in the Medicare program, including to those who have chosen Medicare Advantage.

We write to express our strong support for the Medicare Advantage program and the high-quality care it provides to over 28 million<sup>1</sup> older adults and people with disabilities, with that number growing to nearly 30 million by the end of 2022. As a diverse group of providers, health systems, consumers and patient advocates, community-based nonprofits, and other health care leaders, we urge the Administration to ensure Medicare Advantage can continue to provide the affordable, high-quality, patient-centered coverage Americans rely on every day.

Enrollment in Medicare Advantage has doubled over the last decade. An estimated 46 percent<sup>2</sup> of Medicare beneficiaries choose Medicare Advantage today and it is projected to become the dominant form of Medicare within the next year<sup>3</sup>, driven by significant gains in enrollment among minority and dual-eligible populations.

Medicare Advantage provides older adults and those with disabilities affordable, high-quality services, including care coordination, disease management programs, out-of-pocket spending limits, access to community-based programs, additional supplemental benefits, and often prescription drug coverage for no additional premium. Older adults on Medicare Advantage report a 94% satisfaction rate<sup>4</sup> with their coverage and quality of care, driven by the wraparound services, innovative clinical care models, and greater financial protections that Medicare Advantage provides.

Medicare Advantage is providing high-quality care with 90% of enrollees in a plan with a quality rating of 4 or more stars<sup>5</sup>. Importantly, Medicare Advantage helps provide a holistic approach to care through access to telehealth services, wellness and physical fitness benefits, in-home care, and benefits that address health-related social needs such as food insecurity, social connections, and transportation needs. This model provides improved health outcomes with 43% fewer avoidable hospitalizations for any condition, lower hospital readmission rates, and higher rates of utilization of preventive services<sup>6</sup>.

Medicare Advantage also supports an increasingly diverse population with varied health and socioeconomic needs. 52% of Medicare Advantage enrollees subsist on incomes of less than 200% of the Federal Poverty Level<sup>7</sup>. Additionally, nearly 16% of Medicare Advantage enrollment comprises of beneficiaries dually eligible for Medicare and Medicaid enrolled in Special Needs Plans.<sup>8</sup> Thankfully, average monthly Medicare Advantage premiums in 2022 will reach historical lows, even as the availability of supplemental benefits continues to increase. The latest Medicare Current Beneficiary Survey (MCBS) data show that Medicare Advantage beneficiaries save nearly $2,000 per year on total health expenditures compared to those in fee-for-service Medicare<sup>9</sup>. This cost savings is particularly meaningful among communities of color. Today, 53% of Latino Medicare beneficiaries and 49% of Black Medicare beneficiaries, respectively, choose enrollment in Medicare Advantage<sup>10</sup>.

Amid the COVID-19 crisis, Medicare Advantage has continued to serve some of the most at-risk and disproportionately affected populations. During the first nine months of the pandemic, data showed that Medicare Advantage enrollees experienced a 19% lower rate of COVID-19-related hospitalizations compared to fee-for-service Medicare, as well as a lower COVID mortality rate<sup>11</sup>.

Importantly, Medicare Advantage also demonstrates significant value for taxpayers and the health care system. An October 2021 analysis by Milliman found that per-member, per-month spending in Medicare Advantage is nearly $7 lower than fee-for-service Medicare<sup>12</sup>. The report goes on to explain, “these findings suggest that overall MA offers significant value to the federal government.”

Medicare Advantage depends on continued support from policymakers and regulators to deliver these successes for our nation’s seniors and people with disabilities. We ask the Administration to protect this coverage lifeline and safeguard important benefits in Medicare Advantage such as those focused on addressing health equity, in-home clinical assessments, and value-based insurance design. We are committed to ensuring that the more than 28 million Americans who rely on Medicare Advantage can count on stability in the years ahead and continued respect and support for their Medicare coverage choices.

We thank you again for your work to protect the wellbeing of all Americans and appreciate the stability you have provided in Medicare. We look forward to partnering with you to deliver a healthier future for tens of millions of older adults and those with disabilities through a strong, stable, and vibrant Medicare Advantage.
